FOR THE TIMES. Welcome to Spring. BY ANNA M. BATES.

Thou hast come again to the earth, oh Spring ! see the gleam of thy jewelled wing, hear thy voice as the wind goes by, To the mossy banks where the violets lie. Thou hast brought soft green for the orchard

And ferns to wave on the mountain's brow. Thou hast brought the robin's tuneful trill To ring through the green grove cool and still; The daisy has opened its golden eye, Like a star that shines in the twilight sky; The primrose wakes in the fragrant hedge, Where the leaves are trimmed with a golden

edge

By the sunbeam that begins there all day, Like a rosy child in its merry play. Oh we have waited thy presence long And welcome thee back with lyre and song! Thou with the violets on thy breast And leaves to wreathe o'er the ground-bird's nest, We have looked so long for thy smile in vain, That gladly we welcome thee again ! Thou wilt give back the fountain its silver

The crimson roses will once more flush, Where the wild bee dreams through the sum-

Blue lilies will grow by the dusty way, And the bird and the breeze a welcome sing To the balmy hours of the pleasant Spring!

Mosaics of The Mind. AVISION.

BY WILLIE E. PABOR. I sat in the halls of my fathers-at the foot of the ancient hills. And mellow light stole up the walls where, dusty with age, were the faces and forms of those who had gone hence.

There was youth in its blushing loveliness-manhood in its conscious prideold age in its feeble dependence.

There also was maidenhood in its spotless innocence-womanhood in its matronly dignity, with the babe of a summer reposing like a lily upon a bosom as stainss and as pure.

Premature Matrimony.

Marriage is a divine and beautiful arangement. Now too much, perhaps, is presumed in ur favor; and from all the leading and enterprising publishers, come letters and nquiries indicating a pleasant surprise at the discovery of our hitherto hidden veins f moral treasures, and a disposition to make he most liberal investments in them.

Such things are of the most decided enefit to us; they give us a better opinon of ourselves, thus encouraging and stimulating us to greater efforts, and they furnish material aid in the concessions made and expenditures incurred in behalf of our trade, furnishing us with greater facilities in getting books, making sacrifices to supply us with text books more complimentary to us, and increasing and stimulating the Literary tastes of the community. I am allowed to alter the texts of histories and geographies to make them have a series of Readers especially adapted to our wants and situation,-and finally to have published thirty-five hundred copies

To any one well versed in the facts of the past—the past of only a few years ago, I would also freely and most respect--this is a progress as gratifying as it is wonderful. SEVEN O'CLOCK, P. M. The Convention re-assembled, pursuant adjournment. Mr. Hill of Halifax, Chairman of the ommittee on Resolutions, reported the following, which were read and unanimously adopted:

We, the delegates of the Democracy of North Carolina, in Convention assembled, deeming the present occasion a suitable one to re-affirm the well defined principles upon which our organization, as a party, is

Resolved, That we cordially approve and reaffirm the Resolutions of the Democratic National Conventions of 1848, and 1852, as far

Resolved, That the public lands, being the mmon property of the United States, any sposition of them for the sole and exclusive benefit of any one or more of the States, or the squandering of them in donations to paupers and convicts, whether of native or foreign

Resolved That we heartily approve of the Kansas-Nebraska act, by which the Missouri restriction was repealed, and the people of the South let in with their property, equally with those of the North, to the of the Union. That in our opinion the doctrine of popular sovereignty is the true doctrine that the people of the Territories, when they come to form their State Constitutions and apply for admission into the Union as States have the right to determine for themselves the character of their domestic institutions.

Resolved, That we have viewed with admira tion and gratitude the noble and manly stand taken by the great body of the Democrats of the non-slaveholding States, in behalf of the constitutional rights of the South, and we will cheerfully unite with them, as heretofore, in general Convention, to nominate candidate o appoint a Committee of two from each for the Presidency and Vice Presidency of the United States, and to proclaim once more to the world the great principles of the Democ ratic party; and we pledge our zealous and united support to the nominees of said Conven-

> Resolved, That we regard the Know-Nothing organization as corrupting and dangerous in its influences and toudencies. We congratulate the country upon its rapid decay. The for the Presidency, it is apparent, must be between the Democratic National party and the Black Republicans; that a third party cannot strengthen, but must weaken the South in this contest; and that in a crisis like the present it is alike the interest and the duty of all Southern men to unite with that party which gives the strongest assurance, by its unity, its numbers, and its nationality, that it will triumph over the enemies of our con stitutional rights, by whatsoever name called Resolved, That we are opposed to all secret, athbound political associations, and to intolerance and proscription on account of religious opinion, either by Catholics or Protestants.

Sad memories now are thronging, Mary, Upon my breaking heart; And causing burning, bitter tears Unto my eyes to start; And painful are the thoughts that rise Like billows in my broast; Whilst on my knees I fersently pray To be like thee-at rest.

My soul can ne'er forget, Mary, Our childhood's happy hours: When love lay sleeping in our hearts As dew in folded flowers : When bliss divine was all our own, And Hope was not a dream: When future joys were mirror'd on Life's ever running stream.

But Death grew jealous of our bliss, And his grasp on thee laid: And claim'd thee as his own, to grace The chambers of the grave :-We laid thee down in silence, Mary, The cold earth for thy bed; And placed with pure and holy hands, A marble at thy head.

My heart in its despair, Mary, As fell the falling sod, Gave way to words of bitterness And cursed aloud its God :-But better thoughts upon me rushed, And as I knelt in prayer: Thy gentle spirit softly came To smooth my brow of care.

The Spring once more has given place To Summer's gentle showers; And Winter with its chilling blasts. Has wither'd up the flowers; Yet seasons and their changing scenes, Have now no joys for me; Since thou art dead-for every joy Was centred, love, in thee.

But though my heart is sad Mary And every joy has fled; Though all my hopes and dreams of bliss Are buried with the dead; Yet still unto my weary soul This blessed hope is given: That I can come to thee, my love, And live with thee in heaven.
